1pm

Speaker: Joshua Mann, B & B Rare Books

Booth #: 706

Title:

"Presentations and Provenance: How Signatures Add Value to Books"

Synopsis:

Books signed by the author(s) have always been very desirable, but there is a spectrum of importance and value depending on the manner in which the book was signed and who owned it. A book that is not only signed but inscribed to someone notable or influential in the author's life can place a book in entirely different league of value. (ie: a book signed by the author to his wife, mother, publisher, editor or fellow writer).

2pm

Speaker: Mitchell Weitzman, Founder, Legacy Times

Booth #: 740

Title:

THE GREATEST GIFT OF ALL: CAPTURING A LEGACY IN A "STORY PORTRAIT"

Synopsis:

In this talk from an acclaimed author and interviewer, you will learn how to honor cherished loved ones by discovering creative ways to bring their stories to life—providing a one-of-a-kind keepsake they can treasure in their lifetime and one that will inform and inspire generations to come.

the motifs used on the Kimono. Paul has lectured at such institutions as the Smithsonian and Walters Art Museum.

3pm

Speaker: Patricia Funt, Patricia Funt Antiques

Booth #: 306

Title:

Figural and Fun

Synopsis:

In the diverse world of antiques and collectibles, items that can be described as figural pieces are very sought after. A stamp box in the form of a boar, a pin cushion in the form of a roller skate, or a snuff box in the image of Napoleon. In any category, the best figural pieces have both a great form and a function of interest. Often the function is not clear from the outside, which adds an element of surprise.

Figural pieces can be in the form of people, animals, or things. The fact that a functional piece is in the shape of something interesting raises the interest in the item tremendously, and most often the price as well.

Join Patricia Funt and explore some of her favorite figural pieces and discover why they are the favorites of most collectors.
